WHO IS PROTECTED?

"In a burst of confidence recently Mr. Andrew Carnegie," says the Appeal-Avalanche, "informed a San Francisco reporter that the primal lesson to be learned in the art of getting rich was that 'it isn't the man who does the work who makes the money; it's the man who gets other men to do it.' Mr. Carnegie is a shining light in the Republican party; is also a Scotchman by birth who has lived in this country a good many years 'not without profit,' as Colonel Gildersleeve once said of him. He has in short made a great deal of money in manufacturing business has written several books, and is now telling young men how to get rich. His golden rule of money-getting furnishes not only a key to his own success, but also to the success of the party which he represents. Mr. Carnegie has unwittingly furnished the very best definition of protection that we have ever seen. Whenever a Republican hits upon the idea of starting a new industry in this country, his first thought is, 'How can I get the people to put up the money for it?' His question does not long remain unanswered. Being a Republican he soon perceives the necessity of inducing congress to place a duty on the article which he expects to produce. This accomplished he finds no trouble in raising money, if he needs it, and the tax which he is enabled to impose upon the people soon reimburses him for his investment. The tin plate industry is a case in point. The United States is the richest manufacturing country in the world, and our machinery is with a few exceptions far superior to that of England and Europe; yet when a few tin mine owners wanted to start the tin plate industry instead of putting their hands in their own pockets, and building it up as other industries are built up, they put up a poor mouth to McKinley, had the duty on the tin plate raised, imposing thereby in the year 1891 a tax of $4,000,000 upon the people in order that they might supply about one hundredth part of the tin plate used in the United States. They went on the theory that it was not the man who put up the money who started the new industry, but the man who got the people of the United States to put it up. The protection idea has, it seems, permeated every branch of business. Everybody in every branch is studying out a plan by which he can get his work done by somebody else. We really feel under obligations to Mr. Carnegie for giving us a working definition in this age of protected humbug.

Mr. Hill has about concluded to run on till 1896. He is now conjuring up some plan by which he can make himself solid with the people, and is seriously considering the formal withdrawal of his name as a candidate for the Democratic nominee for president. He has not yet concluded to nominate Cleveland, and it is hoped he will not. The best way for Senator Hill to make himself solid with the people is to sever his connection with Tammany Hall and attend strictly to his duties as senator. If he will do this for about 12 years, he may develop into a statesman.

The Dallas Times Herald came out in a blue dress the day after Farmer Shaw spoke to the Hogg meeting, which the T. H. says was a badly managed affair. The T. H. is a Hogg paper and when that old journalistic fraud with socialistic ideas revamped the lies he imbibed from the gubernatorial headquarters in regard to Judge Clark it had a right to turn blue. THE NEWS would advise our neighbor to be "earl." Shaw's effort will only swell Clark's already large majority.

The fine Italian hand of Banker Woldridge can be seen between the lines of the editorial paragraphs in the Austin Statesman.

Farmersville, Friday, April 22.
Belton, Tuesday, April 26.
Bryan, Friday, April 29.
Calvert, Saturday, April 30.
Cameron, Tuesday, May 3.

SOME CLIPPINGS.

The Luling Herald says: "The Clare meeting at Waco was a rouser. The Hogg meeting at Austin was a failure. This is significant."

The Herald also calls attention to other gubernatorial troubles which vex the present incumbent as follows:

"It must grieve Governor Hogg's bleeding heart when he looks over in his native county of Cherokee, and beholds the distress that his rip-snorting administration has been instrumental in bringing about."

The women, God bless 'em, are coming over on our side.

The outlook is right for the Waco man. Turn Texas Loose.

Hogg opens next Thursday at Wills Point. He will close without any point. His scalp is Clark's.

The hairless scalp of the real chief of Tammany Hall dangles at the belt of ex-President Cleveland.

Judge Aldridge of Dallas is the most effective speaker that has figured in the campaign so far.

What has disturbed the spirit of the Statesman's dreams? The tone of Saturday's edition indicates an unsettled position as to the gubernatorial question.

The New York World has discovered at last that Hill is not in it as a presidential candidate. If any New York man gets the nomination it will be Cleveland.

San Antonio voted down the proposition to increase the bonded debt of the city. It is proper to remark here that this is the first time since he was elected mayor, about eight years ago, that the Honorable Bryan Callaghan failed to carry his point. The next time "Byrne" gets left will be when he fails to carry San Antonio for Hogg.
